Daming lake is the largest lake in the city of Jinan and one of city's main natural and cultural landmarks. Located to the north of the historical city center, the lake is fed by the artesian karst springs of the area and hence retains a fairly constant water level through the entire year.

Baotu Spring - Reportedly, Baotu Spring tops the first place among the seventy-two famous springs of the City, and it is also the earliest of them who was included in history records. Early in the Ming and Qing Dynasties, the spring with clear and sweet water pouring out had become the top scenic spot of Jinan.
